Artists who champion good causes

Julia Bellini is an illustrator and author of educational projects based in France. Passionate about children's learning, she has been leading creative workshops for years, drawing inspiration from children's spontaneity and imagination. Julia brings anthropomorphic characters to life, crafting imaginative scenes that reflect the world around her in a playful, poetic way. She describes her artistic style as "imperfect geometry," effortlessly blending the expressiveness of hand-crafted materials and a passion for geometry; with a structured and analytical approach, she enjoys developing projects that combine creativity and thoughtful design. Captivated by everyday details, she finds endless inspiration in the energy, architecture, and traditions of the city.
