Artists who champion good causes

Moira is a Maltese illustrator, lecturer and researcher in digital arts. Moira grew up near the seaside in Malta, where summers were often filled with family gatherings. She furthered her studies in England and has lived in both Edinburgh and Malta, where she now resides once more. Her work is influenced by people, their surroundings, and the nuances in between. Moira's visual style ranges from playful compositions to textured artworks, reflecting both the Maltese lifestyle and the Scottish countryside. She has received several awards for her illustrations from the Malta National Book Council and won the Kelpies Illustration Prize in Scotland. Moira is the founder of the Malta Community of Illustrators, which publishes a yearly Annual showcasing local talent in both Malta and London.
