Artists who champion good causes

Sandra was born in Barcelona, where she grew up and still currently lives. She comes from a family where drawing is a prominent hobby: her father drew, her aunt, her cousin, her grandmother; even her great-grandfather ... so she spent many hours of her childhood drawing. It was something natural and enjoyable for the family. She grew up to study Fine Arts, although also enjoyed other artistic subjects such as Photography and Cinema. Sandra started working as an illustrator about eight years ago, when she finally made up her mind to go for it. She works under the supervision of her two cats, Chicho and Rudo, who advise her in moments of mental block. She loves listening to podcasts (all kind: pop culture, humour, news) whilst working, but when she needs great concentration it only works music or even better, silence. Sandra dreams of working in a studio overlooking her garden, hopefully someday.

Artists who champion good causes. We work with major progressive brands to communicate their message and align our mutual values by connecting them with diverse, genuine and individual talent.
